Ensnared in a world of violence, enmeshed in a world of sex and terror, innocent street kids grab for one last chance at life, pleading...

Please Help Me, God

They are the children no one knows, nameless and faceless shadows that walk our streets, desperate and scared and alone. They are America's street children, and they are more than 1,000,000 strong.

Entangled in a web of abuse and sex, these innocent kids – some as young as ten – struggle to find hope in a dark world few of us will ever know about, and none of us will ever see.

Who exactly are these kids? How do they end up on our streets? Where do they come from? How do they manage to survive? Do they survive?

This is their incredible story, told from the alleyways and dead-end streets of America. It's a story you will never, ever forget...
